A Note to the Next Owners of Our Home

When we first walked into this house nearly five years ago, we knew we had found something special. We envisioned it as our forever home — a place of comfort, happiness, and respite from the busy world. We fell in love with the beautiful, light-filled rooms downstairs and the wonderful windows overlooking the park-like setting out front. No matter what kind of day we'd had, there was always something so welcoming about coming home.

One of our favorite places was the family room, especially after we installed the fireplace in 2022. We kept that warm, glowing fire going almost year-round, and it truly became the heart of our home. We completely remodeled the kitchen, opening it up to create a space where friends and family could gather, laugh, cook, and simply enjoy being together. Our dining room holds wonderful memories of Thanksgiving dinners, holidays, and countless family celebrations. And the beautiful backyard was the setting for summer cookouts, evenings around the firepit, and so many happy moments.

We truly believed we'd be here forever. But life sometimes has other plans. When our son moved to New York City three years ago, those wonderful family gatherings became fewer and farther between. So when a job opportunity arose near New York a few months ago, we knew it was time to bring our family closer together again.

Leaving this house was not an easy decision. It has been so much more than a place to live — it has been a place filled with love, laughter, warmth, and wonderful memories. While our next chapter has taken us elsewhere, a piece of our hearts will always remain here.

Our hope is that whoever calls this house home next will feel the same warmth and happiness we did, and fill it with beautiful memories of their own.

With warmest wishes,

The Ishler Family
