

The entire property is shaded as crimson color so you can see the shape of the property. Approximately 20% of this property is located in the 100-year floodplain, as you can see in the light purple shaded area as zone A. The rest of the property (80%) is in zone X which is outside of any flood plains.

Zone A area would be a great location to dig a pond, especially if you plan on having any livestock, or for recreational use. The section that has already been cleared is on the highest point of the property. In the past 5+ years since the seller has owned the property, they have never observed any standing water.
