A detailed line drawing of a two-story house. The house features a gabled roof with a central dormer. The front facade includes a central entrance door with a small porch, flanked by windows. To the right is a two-car garage with a double door. The house has multiple windows, including a large one on the left side and a smaller one in the dormer. The drawing uses hatching for shading and is set against a plain white background.

This architectural elevation drawing shows a two-story house with a gabled roof. The exterior features a combination of stone masonry on the lower level and horizontal siding on the upper level. The front facade includes a central entrance with a white door, a large window to the left, and a two-car garage with a double door to the right. The roof is covered in shingles, and the overall design is a traditional ranch-style home.

This architectural elevation drawing shows a two-story house with a complex roofline featuring multiple gables. The exterior is finished with a combination of stone veneer on the lower level and stucco on the upper level. The house includes a central entrance door, a two-car garage with a paneled door, and several windows, some of which are adorned with decorative shutters. A small porch area is visible on the left side of the main entrance.
