

N1872 County Rd P, Rubicon - Property History

Nestled in the rolling countryside of Dodge County, Wisconsin, N1872 County Rd P tells a story spanning more than a century—from a pioneer log cabin to a sprawling 63-acre modern homestead.

This property's story began in the 1890's, when early settlers constructed a small, rustic log cabin on the land. Life here revolved around clearing the soil, tending livestock, and working the tillable acres of Dodge County's fertile farmland. A large wooden barn was eventually erected to support the growing farm, serving as the heartbeat of daily operations for decades.

In 1996, Rodak Dog Training relocated to its long-term home on a sprawling 63-acre property at N1872 County Rd P in Rubicon, Wisconsin. Operating out of the historic homestead—where a 19th-century pioneer log cabin was preserved as an interior family room—the expansive grounds provided the perfect setting for training, boarding, and grooming operations.

As the turn of the millennium arrived, the homestead underwent a major rebirth. Rather than tear down the 19th-century history, a substantial 3,500-square-foot expansion was built around the original core. The original hand-hewn log walls of the 1800's cabin were preserved and integrated directly into the home as a charming interior family room.

Over time, the grounds evolved into a full hobby farm. The property expanded across two parcels totaling roughly 63 acres—combining 23 tillable agricultural acres, timbered woodlands, multiple outbuildings, and a serene, man-made koi pond. Horse arenas and pasture land were added to make it the sought-after equestrian property you see today.

This property is a piece of Wisconsin history that has been preserved, improved and thoughtfully transformed into a beautiful working equestrian estate — while keeping the character that makes an old farm so special.
